DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election with traverse of the restriction in Paper No. 11 is acknowledged.

The traversal is on the ground(s) that the election is with traverse. This is not found persuasive because no arguments were provided to overcome the restriction.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 1, “the first end being intercardiacally inserted for operation” is vague since system claims can not claim connection to the body and since it is more like a method step than a structural limitation. It is suggested to use “a plurality of intercardiac electrodes...”.

In claim 2, “further comprises” is vague since the DPDT switch in claim 2 is the switch of claim 1. It is suggested to delete “further”.

In claim 5, “a energy source” is inferentially included and has not been positively recited. It is unclear if the applicant intends to positively recite and claim the energy source.

In claim 6, “the first end being placed...patient” is vague for claiming a connection to the human body. It is suggested to use “the first end adapted to be placed...”.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being clearly anticipated by Hofstad et al (6438426).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 2-5 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hofstad et al.

Hofstad discloses the claimed invention except for the switch being a DPDT (claim 2), a polarity switch (claim 3), each electrode having a pin connector and a catheter (claim 4), a control switch to control the DPDT (claim 5), and a remote switch to enable remote activation (claim 7). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the external defibrillator as taught by Hofstad, with the switch being a DPDT (claim 2), a polarity switch (claim 3), each electrode having a pin connector and a catheter (claim 4), a control switch to control the DPDT (claim 5), and a remote switch to enable remote activation (claim 7) since it was known in the art that defibrillators use: the switch being a DPDT (claim 2) to provide a conventional inexpensive switch that is easily operated to switch different components into use; a polarity switch (claim 3) to provide a biphasic pulse which is more efficient to defibrillate the patient; each electrode having a pin connector and a catheter (claim 4) to provide smaller catheters that are easily placed in the person and connectable to the defibrillator; a control switch to control the DPDT (claim 5) to allow an energy source to be coupled to the electrodes to provide energy for cardioversion and defibrillation only when needed; and a remote switch to enable remote activation (claim 7) to allow a medical professional not located at the patient to control the device to monitor/defibrillate the patient and/or to allow the medical professional to monitor/defibrillate the patient from where he is located.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claim 6 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
